

MT. MCKINLEY PRINCESS WILDERNESS LODGE

Fact Sheet

Introduction

Located just 41 miles from the peak of its namesake mountain, Mt. McKinley Princess Wilderness Lodge offers a spectacular view of the Alaska Range, including both Mt. McKinley and Mt. Foraker. Situated on 146 acres of land inside Denali State Park and bordered by the Chulitna River, the lodge features dramatic vistas of Mt. McKinley (or "Denali" as the 20,320 foot peak is locally known) – the closest cruise/tour accommodations to the mountain with such a view. Bordering the South side of Denali National Park, McKinley Princess Lodge is just two hours South of the main entrance to the park off of the Park Highway.

Building History

Construction began summer 1995 and the lodge was officially opened on May 13, 1997. An expansion in 1999 added 76 guest rooms. In 2004, the lodge was further expanded to add 96 rooms as well as a renovation of the main lodge and the addition of a new pizza restaurant. 2006 brought an additional four guest buildings in the South Campus and brought our total room count to 460 – making the Lodge the fourth largest hotel in Alaska. During this expansion phase we replaced Expedition Pizza with another Great Room for viewing the mountain and added the charming 20,320 ("Twenty, three-twenty") Alaskan Grill in its own new building.
